Plymouth Orchards and Cider Mill consists of two locations: the cider mill and a separate retail outlet. The mill, once a dairy farm, is surrounded by 60 acres of natural wooded beauty and 30 acres of farmed land that grows 16 varieties of dwarf apple trees. Only the 50-year-old milk house of the dairy farm still stands; this milk house was the original cider mill in 1981. One hundred gallons of cider was hand pressed during the inaugural three-weekend cider season. In 1982 the first cider mill was built, which comprises the current cider mill's pressroom and stockroom. Now thousands of gallons of natural cider and dozens of fresh donuts are produced each 2½-month-long fall season. As of 2016, Plymouth Orchards' apples were certified organic, and the orchard is a certified organic farm.

Plymouth Orchards is more than just cider and donuts. They also offer facility rentals, tours, daily wagon rides through the orchard, u-pick pumpkins, a petting farm, picnic space, and bales of hay and corn stalks for purchase. The tour, designed for school age children, includes a one-hour staff-guided tour of the facilities and grounds, as well as a presentation on the mill's operations.

The second location, the Red Shed Market, features a period wood stove, a picnic area to enjoy your cider and donuts, as well as all of the products available for purchase at the cider mill. It is located on Plymouth-Ann Arbor Road, between Gotfredson and Napier roads.
